TWO BREAK OUT OF COUNTY JAIL AT MT. GILEAD

Facing Auto Theft Charges, Believed To Have Stolen Car for Getaway.

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, April 22.—Two ... Richard Roop, 18, of near ... town, and Clyde Kelly, ... Marietta, escaped early ... from the Morrow coun... They were being held ... es of automobile stealing. ... escape was discovered at ... Sheriff Oscar George. ... district highway pa... headquarters at Findlay, in... a statewide search for ... prisoners.

Shortly after the discovery of their absence an automobile belonging to Harold Benton, Cardington automobile dealer, was reported stolen. It was stolen from near his garage, authorities said, evidently by the youths to aid their getaway.

The early investigation, however, did not reveal how they might have made their way to Cardington. Officers surmised they may have hitch-hiked from Mt. Gilead after leaving the jail.

Later in the night the report of an attempted hold up by two men was made from Mt. Vernon. The automobile used did not tally with a description of the car stolen at Cardington and officers said there was nothing to link the youths to the attempted robbery.

Time of the jail break was fixed at about 8:30 p. m. by Sheriff George. The prisoners were last seen a short time before. Kelly, a trusty, had been released from the cell block and was cleaning the jail office, Sheriff George reported.

Roop was in the cell block, the door to which was unlocked, but locked, and could be opened only from the outside, the sheriff said. Kelly apparently opened the door to free Roop and then the pair fled, according to the sheriff.

They made their way from the first floor of the jail into the basement. An open basement window indicated they climbed to freedom from the cellar. They apparently chose this method of exit to avoid detection. Sheriff George was in another part of the jail on the first floor, he reported.

Marion Men in Hunt

Highway patrolmen, including Corporal W. D. Mariner and Patrolman W. D. Busch of Marion joined in the initial search. Officers from the local sub-station cruised in the vicinity of Mt. Gilead during most of the night. Sheriff George and Deputy Milton Griffin, searched throughout the night.

Report of the theft of Mr. Benton's car at Cardington, centered the hunt in southern Morrow county and neighboring Delaware and Knox counties. Up to noon today there was no trace of Benton's automobile. This, officers said, indicated the youths were not connected with the Mt. Vernon incident since a car of a different description was reported there.

Kelly and Roop, although held on similar charges, were not known to be acquainted before their incarceration here. Roop was arrested after he allegedly stole an automobile at Fredericktown, wrecking it later when it crashed into a house at Edison. He spent several weeks in the Mt. Vernon hospital recuperating from injuries. The accident occurred last fall.

Kelly, who appeared before Juvenile Judge Conard Clouse last week, was to have been sent to the juvenile research bureau at Columbus before being sentenced. He was accused of taking an automobile belonging to Harold ... foreman of the Florence Pot... here.

He was arrested two weeks ago at Marietta where the West car was recovered, authorities said. Previously he was held for issuing ... questionable check. At the time of his arrest on the check charges last fall he was driving an automobile taken at the state fairgrounds in Columbus, according to authorities.

MARION, CRAWFORD CO. RUNAWAY YOUTHS HELD

Spring apparently stirred the wanderlust in youngsters of at ... institutions yesterday, for city police last night picked up five girls who had run away from the Crawford County Children's home at Galion and two boys who ran away from the Marion County Children's home on the Delaware ...

Officers quoted all seven as saying they had no destinations, in particular, but were just dissatisfied with living at the homes.

The two Marion county boys, ages 15 and 16, told officers they ran away from the institution late ... night. They were arrested ... walking on Delaware ave... ... about midnight and were taken to the county detention home.

KENTUCKY CLUB CASE IS SET FOR APRIL 30

Hearing on Gambling Charges To Be Before Jury.

A municipal court hearing of charges of operating a gambling house filed against four men following a raid at the Kentucky club on South Main street was continued until April 30 Saturday afternoon on a motion of Grant E. Mouser Jr., attorney for the defendants. At the same time the defendants filed a request for a jury trial.

The hearing originally was scheduled for today.

In asking for the continuance, Mr. Mouser said the defense needed additional time in preparing its case. Court officials said names of prospective jurors would be drawn sometime this week from the common pleas court's jury wheel. The defendants are Charles England, 42, of Mt. Gilead, William Ford, 22, of 671 Cleveland avenue, H. R. Reed, 55, of 135 Sharpless court and Forest Midlam, 21, of near Marion.

No date has yet been set, court officials reported, for hearing a replevin suit filed by Mr. Mouser several days ago in which the Empire News Service Co. of Columbus seeks to recover Western Union teletype equipment seized in the raid.

NO DAMAGE AT RYE BEACH, PROPERTY OWNER SAYS

Rye Beach escaped damage in the storm which struck along Lake Erie Saturday, K. H. Marshall of Marion reported today after an inspection of the resort yesterday. Mr. Marshall and some 17 other Marion people own property at the beach.

Mr. Marshall said news reports that Rye Beach had suffered damage in the storm probably had the location confused. He visited every part of the resort on his inspection, but found no evidence of damage.

Flood Crest Rolls Down Ohio Valley, Worst Over

Up River Families Return To Clean Up; Damage to Roads Estimated at $1,000,000 in State.

By The Associated Press

MARIETTA, O., April 22—The rain-gorged Ohio river receded north of here today as a crest nine feet above flood stage in places rolled on downstream.

Rivermen generally agreed "the worst is over." Hundreds of families driven from lowland homes upriver returned to clean up while those downstream hoped property damage would remain relatively small.

Tributary floods apparently proved most costly. Harry Metcalf, chief highway maintenance engineer, estimated damage to roads in southern Ohio at $1,000,000. Two drownings were reported in West Virginia; swollen streams in northern Ohio claimed the lives of two children.

The muddy Ohio "flattened out" between Pittsburgh and Cincinnati over the week-end after cessation of persistent rains in the area. Further rain was not expected before tomorrow and forecasts indicated it would hardly approach last week's downpour.

Merchants Move Stocks

Marietta merchants worked throughout the night moving stocks to safety as the river rose a tenth of a foot an hour towards an anticipated mid-morning crest of 45 feet, nine above flood stage.

They were aided by about 100 Marietta college students given "vacations" until Wednesday when water put campus heating plant boilers out of commission. Public schools also were closed because numerous pupils were cut off from classes by high water. About 75 families here fled their homes but many others moved only to second stories.

The crest was expected to reach Huntington, W. Va., some 100 miles downstream, tonight but observers said the river probably wouldn't go more than five feet above the 50-foot flood stage there.

Cincinnati looked for a 58-59 foot crest while Louisville, Ky., prepared for a top of 36 feet about Thursday. Cincinnati's flood stage is 52 feet. The stage there at midnight was 55.15 feet and rising about .05 of a foot an hour. The water was three feet above flood stage of 28 feet at Louisville.

Point Pleasant Hard Hit

One of the hardest hit towns was Point Pleasant, W. Va., traditional flood victim. Seven feet of water swirled through the main street last night and at least 50 families evacuated their homes. A

Group from Here in Flood Waters on Athens Trip

Marion's delegation to the 66th semi-annual Ohio Typographical Conference at Athens Saturday and Sunday had a taste of southern Ohio's flood waters on their trip, passing through five places where water was over the road.

The worst situation was at Athens itself, where the Hocking river was on a rampage. The Marion party, traveling in the car of George W. Sorreles of Green Camp, had to drive a half mile or more in water, which for some distance was so deep it covered the floor of the car to a depth of three inches.

Twice the car stalled, but Mr. Sorreles managed to get it started again. This particular road was the only main route open into Athens.

The Marion party included Mr. Sorreles, Mrs. Sorreles, Miss Anna Mae Crispin and Fred P. Haas. All are members of the Star's composing room staff and of the Marion Local No. 675 of the International Typographical Union, excepting Mrs. Sorreles. She is a member of the auxiliary and is secretary-treasurer of the Ohio Conference of Woman's Auxiliaries.

The group left Marion Saturday morning and got as far as Lancaster where they were turned back by officials who told

Water Recedes at LaRue, Rises At Prospect; Two Rural Schools Closed

The flood waters of the Scioto were receding at LaRue today, but continued to rise slowly at Prospect. Several county roads along the river and also State Route 203 between Prospect and Newmans were under water and probably will be for sometime yet.

Two rural schools closed today. Green Camp will be shut down today, Tuesday and Wednesday because of the high water and road repairs. Prospect school was closed today but probably will reopen tomorrow if the water permits.

There was no great difficulty with the Whetstone, which is pretty well within its banks now. The Scioto at Prospect at 9 o'clock today stood at 11.95 feet, a rise of .54 of a foot since yesterday morning. Saturday morning the level was 10.09 feet. Flood stage is 10 feet at Prospect and 11 at LaRue.

Many houses at Prospect had flooded basements and yards, but the situation was not serious enough that any one had to leave their homes. The water went over one street but not to any great depth.

At LaRue the Scioto fell to 10.80 feet today, just below the flood stage. The streets were all clear and the water was beginning to recede on the river roads.

The level dropped a half-foot since yesterday morning and was still going down.

Ex-Convict Labor Czar in New York Seized by Dewey

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 22.—George Scalise, 43, a stocky ex-convict, undertaker and powerful subchieftain of the American Federation of Labor, today answered criminal charges that he had collected $100,000 in a labor extortion racket with a statement that he was a "victim of political aspirations."

Detectives seized the $25,000-a-year president of the Building Service Employes International union in a pre-dawn raid Sunday in a $9-a-day room at a midtown hotel.

They acted on instructions telephoned from San Francisco by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, who is campaigning for the Republican presidential nomination.

Things To Remember As You Buy Strawberries

Dear Friends in Marion:

"S" stands for spring, and for sun-ripened, sun-sweet strawberries.

It is true that modern transportation and improved growing methods have made it possible for consumers in most sections of the land to enjoy strawberries 12 months of the year, and yet the fresh-from-the-market, home-grown berries have a flavor and an appeal all their own.

Improved flavor is logical at this season, since berries shipped in the winter must be picked partly ripe. Long transportation hauls also increase the possibility of bruising.

In shopping for strawberries, eye appeal counts for a lot, for better berries show their quality in a fresh, clean, bright appearance. They have a solid red color all over, and are without excess moisture, dirt or trash. The green caps are attached. Both caps and stems are a bright green.

Large strawberries have an appeal for the average buyer, but size is not an indication of flavor, for that varies with the variety. Small, misshapen berries usually are poor in quality, and quite frequently have a small, hard, green area. Berries with white spots—especially on the tips — were picked before they were mature.

Examine the Container

Look carefully at the container before you buy. A container stained a deep red is a warning flag to purchasers. Usually it means that the berries have been mashed, or they are over-ripe and leaky. Decay may show up in the presence of mold on the surface of the berries.

Generous marketing is not encouraged, except at preserving time, for strawberries are among the most perishable of all the fruits.

"Buy only enough strawberries for immediate needs," is the oft-repeated warning. If the berries must be kept overnight, look them over, and pick out any berries that show signs of softening or mold. Then place in a colander, or other ventilated container before storing them in the refrigerator or other cool place.

Wash the berries just before you are ready to use them. Often in the rush of preparing a meal, the berries are placed under a heavy stream of water, which is allowed to run on them several minutes. This method does not get rid of and and grit: the berries lose flavor and are apt to be mashed or bruised.

To prevent mashing, rinse the berries carefully, a few at a time, in a pan of water. Lift the berries out of the water, rather than pouring the water off. In that way, the sand or soil settles to the bottom. Do not let the berries stay in the water any longer than necessary, or they will lose color and flavor.

An All-Day Food

Strawberries may be served around the clock, starting with strawberries and cream, or with cereal, for breakfast, strawberry shortcake for luncheon, strawberry jam or appetizers for tea, and strawberry cream pie for dinner. Then there are strawberry sauces for ice-cream, custards and puddings, strawberry fruit combinations for salads and fruit cup, and delicious meringues, mousses, strawberry ice-cream and fruit drinks.

Fresh berries blend well with sliced bananas, oranges, diced fresh or canned pineapple, apricots, peaches or pears. A little sugar syrup, fruit juice, or preferably honey, may be mixed in with such combinations to give them additional sweetening and liquid. A sprig of mint will add color and flavor. A jar of chilled strawberry juice, or of sweetened, crushed strawberries in the refrigerator is a welcome time-saver.

Avoid long cooking in making strawberry jams and preserves. It is better to undercook the strawberry products a trifle than to overcook them, since the flavor, the color, and the consistency are changed by too much heat. A simple method for preserves calls for equal measures of strawberries and sugar. Heat the mixture slowly and stir until it boils. Boil for exactly six minutes, pour into hot, clean jars and seal.

Short-Cuts

There are short-cuts to strawberry ice-cream, too. Add two cups of berries and two-thirds of a cup of sugar to one quart of half-frozen vanilla ice cream. Two cups of crushed berries and one-half cup of granulated sugar also may be added to one quart of partially frozen lemon ice for a delicious sherbet.

The most exacting gourmet, who insists on fancy tricks with almost every other known food, is content to eat strawberries plain and uncooked. Many a hostess serves as dessert luscious, perfect berries, still wearing green caps and stems, with individual dishes of powdered sugar for "dunking."

Strawberries are especially healthful, for most people, since they contain a mild acid which aids digestion, as well as mineral salts not found in most foods. Authorities list them as a fair source of vitamin A, a good source of vitamin B, and an excellent source of vitamin C.

Fresh Spring Vegetables Enliven Menus

Carrots, potatoes, onions and turnips blend in a vegetable treat in this casserole.

GYPSY CASSEROLE

1½ inch slice of smoked ham (about 1½ pounds), 4 potatoes, 6 carrots, 4 small onions, ½ cup pure New Orleans molasses, 1 turnip, 1 cup milk, ½ teaspoon paprika.

Pare and cut vegetables in half. Place ham in bottom of greased casserole, or cut in cubes and mix with vegetables. Arrange vegetables in casserole. Combine molasses, milk, and paprika; pour over vegetables. Cover and bake in moderate oven 2 hours. Uncover last ½ hour. Serves 6.

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
AP Feature Service Writer

NOW come the pleasant days for the early morning marketer. Stalls and counters are piled high with the multi-colored freshness of spring vegetables. It's a gay sight to see—and a sight warming to the budget. For prices of vegetables, as a rule, are lower now.

The allure of these garden-fresh tempters doesn't stop there, either. They're swell health-givers and marvelous menu-brighteners. Why not take your spring tonic the vegetable way?

Try this gay spring combination. Let it serve as the main part of a luncheon or dinner. Outline a mound of creamed potatoes, seasoned with grated cheese, with buttered peas. Sprinkle the steaming whiteness with the gay yellow of grated egg yolks. Garnish with cress or parsley. To prepare the yolks, hard-cook 2 eggs, cool them, cut them in halves and carefully lift out the whole yolks. Press them through a coarse strainer held directly over the food. Mince the whites and put them into the accompanying sauce or save them for use later in sandwiches or salad mixes.

Here is another vegetable platter that's enticing enough to form the backbone of a meal. Pile Brussels sprouts on a platter, surround them with sliced cooked carrots and then add an encircling ring of asparagus or green beans. Drench in melted butter and seasonings. Garnish with sliced hard-cooked eggs. Pass a chees or plain cream sauce, if you like, although this dish is well able to stand on its own.

Seasonings browned in bacon or olive oil give a teasing flavor to cooked corn, green beans, beets and cauliflower. Cook ¼ cup chopped bacon or 3 tablespoons of oil until smoking, then mix in 2 tablespoons each of chopped celery, onions, green peppers and parsley. Simmer a couple of minutes and blend into 2 cups of hot vegetable.

Green peppers and tomatoes make first-class containers for cooked asparagus and cheese, rice and mushrooms, carrots and turnips or any leftover fish, meat or chicken. Make up a savory sauce—thicker than the usual vegetable sauce. Add an equal amount of the cooked food and use this to stuff scooped-out peppers or tomatoes. Bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven. If you like, sprinkle grated cheese over the tops the last 10 minutes of the baking. This increases the food value and tastiness.

Another novel dish is stuffed squash. Bake small squash about 30 minutes—until quite soft—then stuff with creamed cabbage, celery, corn or broccoli. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake 20 minutes.

Spruce up some plain meals by shaping mashed potatoes, carrots, corn, spinach or celery into ring shapes. For each 2 cups of vegetables, add 1 egg or 2 yolks, ½ cup milk, salt and pepper and ½ cup soft bread crumbs. Pour into a buttered ring mold and bake 15 minutes in a moderate oven. Unmold, surround and fill with rice and cheese, mushrooms and green beans or macaroni and tomatoes.

Vegetables are always at their best when they are cooked until tender, drained thoroughly and handled carefully so they won't be soft or mashed. They are then ready to be lightly mixed into other ingredients. Remember these points and you will rate high as a vegetable cook.

Try These Spring Delicacies

Strawberry Bavarian Cream

One cup washed, hulled and halved strawberries, one-third cup cold water, one-half cup sugar, one tablespoon plain gelatin, one cup heavy cream.

Soak the gelatin in the cold water five minutes. Combine the strawberries and sugar; heat to the boiling point, but do not boil. Add the gelatin and stir until it dissolves. Set aside to cool, and when the gelatin starts to congeal, fold in the cream, whipped stiff. Transfer to a mould rinsed with cold water, and chill until firm in refrigerator. Unmould, and serve plain or garnished with whipped cream and berries.

Strawberry Mousse

One and one-half cups red-ripe berries, washed and hulled; one-half cup granulated sugar, one teaspoon lemon juice, one cup whipping cream, one stiffly-beaten egg white, few grains salt.

Crush berries with sugar and heat until the sugar is dissolved. Add the lemon juice and chill the mixture. Then combine with whipped cream, the stiffly beaten egg white and salt. This simple recipe is particularly welcome, because it is equally good for the automatic refrigerator or for freezing in ice. The mixture may be frozen, without being stirred, in the freezing tray of the automatic refrigerator, or turned into a mould or can, then covered, sealed and buried in equal parts of crushed ice and salt for about four hours.

Oatmeal Nut Cookies

One cup shortening, one teaspoon each salt, cinnamon, allspice, one cup sugar, two eggs, beaten, two cups rolled oats, one-half cup raisins, chopped, one cup nuts, chopped, three cups sifted flour, one and one-half teaspoons soda, one-fourth cup milk.

Combine shortening, salt and spices and blend. Add sugar and cream well. Add eggs and mix thoroughly. Add rolled oats, raisins and nuts, mixing well.

Sift flour and soda together; add flour to rolled oats mixture, alternately with milk, blending thoroughly. Drop from teaspoon two inches apart on baking sheets rubbed with shortening. Flatten slightly with spatula. Bake in moderate oven 350 degrees, 12 to 15 minutes. Recipe makes six dozen.

Russian Snow

Three eggs, one pint milk, one teaspoon vanilla, one-fourth cup sugar, one tablespoon confectioners' sugar. (Serves six.)

Boil milk with vanilla. Beat egg whites until stiff and add the tablespoon sugar. Beat again. Take small spoonfuls of egg whites and drop in the boiling milk. Boil the snow balls until welded, about 2 or 3 minutes. Take them out carefully and put in bowl. Beat together the egg yolks and the one-fourth cup sugar. After the snow balls are all cooked, add the yolks and sugar to the milk and stir constantly until thickened. Do not let the mixture boil after the yolks have been added. Pour the thickened sauce over the snow balls. Chill. This may be garnished with fresh berries, or other fruit, with jams or with preserves.

YESTERDAY: Mac buys a car and takes Brenda out. She enjoys his company until they disagree violently about the Abernathy twins. Brenda tries to concentrate on her writing again but a letter arrives concerning Saltus.

CHAPTER 16

"Mind Your Own Business"

ON HER way to see Hugh, Brenda heard her name called. She stopped impatiently. Having made up her mind to a move which might be deemed by others somewhat unwise and officious, she was naturally impatient at any delay in this action.

"What is it, Dorothy? You are Dorothy, aren't you?"

Dorothy gave a timid grunt in reply. Her broad face was scarlet, either from her exertions or from embarrasment, and she fingered the hem of her apron exactly like the second housemaid in a good old British drama.

"Well, what can I do for you, Dorothy?" Brenda asked.

Dorothy mumbled something, at the same time poking an awkward finger into her hair.

"What is it? You'll really have to speak up if you want me to hear."

"Curls!" the innocent orphan gasped. "I want to have curls like yours."

The astounded Miss Burnham gazed at her in silence. It appeared that Kipling was right, after all! The Colonel's lady—or at any rate, the Brenda Burnhams and Dorothy Arnolds were sisters under the skin, so far as curls went anyhow.

She said kindly: "I'm afraid a permanent is the best you can do along that line, Dorothy. You see, I was born with curly hair just as you were born with straight." She eyed the thick tow-colored locks speculatively. "I'll bet her hair is down to her waist."

"You'd really be wise not to touch it though," she warned. "It's very nice hair; and such a lot of it!"

Dorothy gulped. "Too much! I have to wear the awfulest old hats! Would you—please, Miss Brenda, would you—ask Mrs. Arnold can I have a permanent?"

Brenda's besetting sin, her sinful independence, rose in one outraged leap.

"Ask her? Why should I or anyone ask her? It's your hair, isn't it?" Then an idea checked her. "You have wages, or an allowance, of your own, Dorothy?"

"I got my savings accounts; and I have a dollar a week to spend."

Brenda surveyed her wonderingly. Was the woman really subnormal, as she had suggested to Mrs. Arnold? Surely nothing else could account for the dictatorship which was exercised over her. For once in her life Brenda resolved to use some caution. She would inquire into the mental status of Dorothy before she gave advice. If she was normal, well and good. She should be encouraged to spend her own money as she pleased. If she was not—well, of course that might alter the case. Brenda said kindly:

"I'm in a terrible hurry now, Dorothy. Let me think it over—about your hair. I mean — and then I'll tell you what I have decided. Will that be all right?"

She was surprised to see tears spring into the small brown eyes looking down into her own. Dorothy gulped, tortured her apron hem more violently than ever, and nodded. Brenda sped away.

"What this street needs is O'Neill and Mary Wilkins Freeman in collaboration," she remarked thoughtfully.

'Don't Oversize'

Hugh did not answer her tap at the studio door. He seldom did when he was absorbed in his work. Undaunted, Brenda pushed it open and walked in. The artist was seated before a long table, busy with some pen and ink sketches over which he hastily placed a blotter when he recognized his caller.

"Hugh, I've got some news for you!"

He looked at her with something of Adelaide's vagueness. It was plain that his mind had been far away from The Street.

"It's about—Linda!"

His head jerked up, his eyes grew stern.

"Look here, little Brenda Burnham," he said levelly, "You're a nice child, and I've liked having you drop in. But don't overstep your privileges. In other words," he finished with a charming smile, "mind your own business, darling."

Her small jaw tightened. "I will of course, if you insist. But I'm quite sure that you don't know what I've come to tell you, and that you ought to know it. I paid you the compliment of believing you would enjoy being treated as an adult; as a responsible adult," she finished.

He took out a cigarette and lighted it with hands not quite steady.

"Confound you, Brenda! Must you come here raking over old coals, stirring the ashes of—of my marriage? There's nothing I need to know about Linda. She's perfectly able to look after herself." And then he added in a panic-stricken voice: "She's not ill? You haven't come to tell me that she's ill?"

Brenda drifted toward the door. "Not that I know of—though it's likely she will be, under the circumstances."

He crossed the studio in five strides; gripped her arm until she winced.

"What do you know about Linda? Tell me!"

"But I thought there was nothing you needed to know about her. I thought you wanted me to mind my own business."

He smiled wryly. "It doesn't seem to me that you have minded it—exactly. Even for a Burnham you seem to have a finger in a good many pies on The Street. Sit down," he commanded, "and say what you came to say."

She sank obediently upon the couch. "You remember you asked me a while back if I'd written anyone about you? And I said I had—one or two persons? Well, I had an answer this morning to one of those letters. It's from a friend of mine in New York. She knows—your wife; she knows Linda."

"Go on," he bade her impatiently.

"She's clerking in a bargain basement, Hugh. She's living in a down-at-the-heels room in a none-too-distinguished house."

'A Bad Mistake'

"Linda!" His eyes darkened and his face grew ashen. Then he laughed. "You've been misinformed, Brenda. I pay five hundred dollars into Linda's bank on the first of every month. She could live comfortably on that. Aside from that, you don't know Linda. Luxury is an absolute necessity to her. I honestly believe she'd die if she—did what you said she was doing. Clerking—Linda! Your correspondent has made a bad mistake."

She drew a letter from the pocket of her smock and put it into his hand.

"Read for yourself," she said simply.

Five minutes later he lifted his head and gazed at her haggardly.

"But what in heaven's name is she doing with the money I pay her?"

It was a tacit admission of conversion but his visitor refrained from flaunting her triumph.

"I've thought it all out," she informed him. "I don't know why she left you—I imagine it was some silly sort of quarrel—but if she happened to be a proud person—"

"Linda is damnably proud!"

"Um. Yes. It all fits in. She isn't using your money, you see. She went out and got herself a job—any kind of a job."

He plunged his hands in his thick hair. "But that doesn't make sense! In the first place, Linda is entitled to what money I send her. We're not divorced, she's still my wife. It's my job to support her. In the second—"

"I wouldn't think I was entitled to money, if I'd left my husband," Brenda said bluntly.

"You wouldn't?" The idea appeared to be so odd to him that he stopped to ponder it. "But that's absurd, Brenda; it's ridiculous. Naturally a man supports his wife."

She said still more bluntly:

"But she isn't your wife now, Hugh. Surely you must see that. Surely you must realize she would look at it that way."

Angry color began to replace his pallor. "Of all the specious reasoning I ever heard . . . but that's a woman for you! Logic simply doesn't exist for your sex!"

"On the contrary, it seems to me that Linda's being far more logical than you are, Hugh! Think it over!"

He swallowed. "Listen, Brenda! I'll give you the barest outline of the—the trouble between Linda and me—"

She shook her head, her eyes on her shoes.

"Better not, Hugh! You might regret it afterward. I've told you what I thought it was important for you to know. That closes the discussion, so far as I am concerned."

But he was as eager now to detain her as he had been to speed her on her way ten minutes before.

"Tell me what to do," he begged. "Shall I catch the first train to New York and find Linda—reason with her—"

She looked at him pityingly. Such a clever artist, and so stupid where women were concerned.

"Heavens above, no! You'd simply drive her away from her job, from her room. How long has she been away?"

"Nineteen months and ten days," he said.

Brenda drew her own conclusions from this prompt answer.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Carrying Prized Maps, Madge, Lillian Return to Report to "Chief."

FOR A STARTLED instant after Miss Carman's announcement, neither Lillian nor I uttered a sound. That the aged recluse, who had guarded the secret of her house for three generations, and was pledged to destroy the records of that secret before she died, should present them to us without conditions, was an astounding thing, even though we were already guessing the reason for her action.

"You are surprised," the little old woman said, looking intently at us, "but if you think a bit, my action is only a logical one. I find that the secret I have guarded for years is known to an enemy of my country who is making use of it for his own base ends. There is no longer anything to be protected. I am very old. I may die at any time. I had planned to destroy these records within the week. It is fortunate that you came when you did. They might have been ashes."

No Strings Attached

An icy shiver rippled down my spine at the picture she brought to my mind, but I had no chance to contemplate it, for she went on speaking.

"When the reason for keeping a pledge vanishes," the tired old voice said slowly, "a person must use one's own judgment as to one's course. My brain and my conscience agree that the best use I can make of these old records is to give them into your hands freely and without condition. I do not ask that you ever destroy them. Use the knowledge they give you with my blessing."

She gathered the maps and papers together and put them into my hands and Lillian's with a gesture that had something regal about it. There was a subtle air of dismissal about the gesture also. I knew that she must be extremely tired, and we took the hint immediately.

"Dear Miss Carman," I said earnestly, "we never can thank you sufficiently for what you have done for us. Will you forgive us if we hurry away now? I am so anxious to show my father these maps."

A Promise

Her thin lips quirked surprisingly upward in a little smile.

"I'll forgive you on one condition," she said.

"It is granted before you name it," I countered promptly.

"When this is all over," she said slowly, "if I am still here, will you come back and tell me the end of this dramatic adventure? I shall be so thrilled to hear it."

"I can think of nothing which would give us greater pleasure," I assured her, and when Lillian had echoed my words, we took our leave of Miss Carman. Clasping jealously the documents she had given us, we were then borne swiftly back to the farmhouse in the armored car.

A Dour Husband

Dicky was on the veranda, evidently watching for us, and as the car stopped for identification by the guards, he came down the steps to meet us.

"You've certainly taken your time," he grumbled, but the look in his eyes was that of such relieved anxiety that I could feel no resentment for his surly tone. Dicky has something of the temperament of some mothers who are tortured by anxiety and premonitions of dire happenings when their children are lost, and spank them soundly when they are found.

"You can bet your last plugged nickel on that, Dickybird," Lillian said airly, "but was it worth it? Just wait until you hear what happened. And you'll have to wait. We mustn't say a word until we see the Chief. Where is he?"

Dicky helped us to alight, lifting his eyebrows at the bundles of papers which Lillian and I were clasping so tightly.

"Don't tell me!" he began, then stopped short and put a hand beneath an elbow of each if us.

"The Chief is waiting in his room, refusing dinner or other solace, until he knows you're back again. Come along! Let's go over the top."

Meeting The Public Demand For Service

Over a period of years the American public has been showing preference for the larger, better equipped funeral establishments.

The preference is especially marked in the larger cities where people have a choice among a hundred or more funeral establishments.

Since every funeral director can buy any style or grade of casket this trend indicates that people are looking beyond caskets. They want SERVICE and adequate surroundings.

To meet this public demand an increasingly large part of our costs have been looking toward service that is as nearly perfect as human effort can make it.

It makes your legs ache to watch him; he runs so fast! But when George lights up a cigarette, speed is out. "No fast burning for me," he says. "I always smoke the slower-burning brand...Camel. Camels give me several big extras in smoking."
OFF THE DIAMOND, George Case (below) prefers a slower pace...he likes to fish...smokes Camels a lot. He says: "Slower-burning Camels are more than mild—they're extra mild and extra cool. The more I smoke Camels, the more I like their full, rich flavor." Yes, the more you smoke Camels, the more you'll appreciate their extra mildness, extra coolness, and extra flavor.

Taft Gives Practical Demonstration of His Government Economy Doctrine

By EARL BERKLEY
Associated Press Writer

...SHINGTON, April 22—Sen. ... A. Taft, urging energetic... in the Republican presi... nomination, is giving ... and foe plenty to talk ...

... the last week he was ...ter of political and con...al activity more exciting ...

..for a Clear Skin rich, red blood cells will help you

"I WAS determined to have a clear skin. Someone told me of S.S.S. . . . Now I am happy . . . I found the way to build from within."

Everyone wants to win and hold friends. Whatever local treatment you use for your complexion . . . remember skin health — natural glow — is dependent on the full strength of red blood.

Paleness, quick fatigue, a general run-down condition, underweight (in the absence of an organic trouble or focal infection) may be due to (1) lack of assimilation of food (2) weakened blood. This is also true after middle life.

For generations S.S.S., a blood tonic and stomachic, has been helping people gain new strength . . . better health . . . more happiness.

S.S.S. record of accomplishment warrants your giving it a good trial. Why not start taking it today. You will soon observe improvement and will be happy with the results obtained. The large size represents a saving in the purchase price. S.S.S. Co.

than usual even for a presidential candidate.

First, he refused to be drawn into the Maryland presidential preference primary.

Second, he and Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) led a senate fight against legislation to create a new judgeship in the sixth circuit which includes his own state, Ohio.

Third, opposed an increase in the flood control appropriation, part of it intended for projects in the Buckeye state—one in his native Cincinnati.

• • •

Presidential aspirant Thomas Dewey of New York invited, even challenged Taft to contest with him in the Maryland primary. The Ohioan calmly refused, saying the Republican bosses of two factions in the free state were for Dewey, leaving the cards "stacked" in advance.

Anyhow, the Senator added, the Republican party in Maryland was a minority party.

Taft contended there was no pressing need for a new judge in the sixth circuit, and agreed with Vandenberg that this was no time to create a lifetime job at $12,000 a year. Nevertheless the bill was passed.

• • •

Taft's economy leanings also prompted his opposition to a proposal to raise the flood control appropriation $30,000,000 above the $70,000,000 budget recommendation.

"Flood control," he said, "is important. Cincinnati has been flooded. I have seen probably more destruction from flood than any other senator has seen. I am anxious to see the flood control program proceed.

"Yet the alternative of national bankruptcy is so much worse that I believe we can go on as we have gone for 50 years.

"For a long period of time congress paid no attention to the matter of flood control. In 1884 we had a flood about as bad as that of 1937. After a flood the destruction can be very rapidly repaired. Two weeks after our last big flood we were back doing business as usual.

"It is not at all clear that we should not abandon a great many places which we propose to protect with floodwalls. It is a question whether in the long run it is worth while to protect them. The money used for protection in many cases amounts to more than the actual value of the property."

All projects, Taft declared, are desirable.

"Of course," he said, "We want to stop floods as rapidly as possible. This it not the question. The question is, where are we going to get the money with which to pay for flood control work?

"The budget bureau already recommends appropriations which involve a deficit of over $3,000,000,000. We are constantly increasing debt. How on earth are we to pay for things when we have no money?"

Memorial services for Representatives Chester Bolton of Cleveland and William A. Ashbrook of Johnstown and other members of congress who have died since last Memorial day will be conducted in the house chamber next Wednesday.

The service, held annually, will be opened with the customary selections by the United States Marine band. Addresses of tribute to the deceased members will be made by Reps. Woodruff, Republican of Michigan and Beam, Democrat of Illinois.

The house paused last Thursday to hear one of its members eulogize the late, Ohio-born Clarence Darrow. It was the 83rd anniversary of his birth.

Representative T. V. Smith, Democrat of Illinois, described the great agnostic as a "defender of the defenseless" who died "to prove, as he lived to argue, that life is accidental and death its slow, sure doom."

"Born in Kinsman, Ohio, Darrow lived in kinship universal and died an undisputed king of human kindliness," said Smith. "Others he saved from the grim reaper; himself he could not save."

Value of parsley juice.

Several weeks ago I stated in answer to a question that I knew of no special value of parsley juice and invited the opinions of my readers on the subject. I have had a number of replies. Several of them mention the use of parsley in urinary troubles and in retention of the bladder; also its use as a kidney stimulant and in cases where there has been suppression of urine.

One reader calls my attention to the fact that it is a source of vitamins A, B, C, and contains iron, copper and manganese.

"Considering the fact," writes my correspondent, "that one eats an infinitesimal portion of parsley, one scarcely derives any benefit from it, but I believe that by drinking the juice one may obtain the valuable mineral and vitamin content. I grind the parsley and extract the juice which I serve as a cocktail. If served between meals, I mix it with grapefruit juice. If served at dinner, I mix it with tomato juice."

Spots in Stomach

Is there any test to show whether there is an opening or raw spot in the stomach or intestines any place?

Yes, there is a test known as the "Woldman Test." It depends upon the use of phenolphthalein, a drug which is absorbed and can easily be detected in the urine because it gives a color reaction with acids and alkalis.

Tigers Knock Out Feller, Win 12 to 2

Bob, Only Human After All, Is Belted from Box; Dizzy Dean Fails To Hold Down Cards, White Sox Defeat Browns

By BILL WHITE
Associated Press Sports Writer

American league batsmen can breathe easier today Bobby Feller's only human after all

Rated off his performance in white washing the White Sox with a no hitter opening day plus the knowledge that his blinding speed is matched by newly acquired baseball cunning the outlook was anything but bright for the hapless hitters But he lasted only three innings yesterday as the Detroit Tigers rapped him solidly for six hits and an ultimate 12 2 victory

The 21-year-old phenom was greeted with a loud double from the bat of Barney McCosky first Tiger to face him and that was all the Tigers needed They drove him from the mound with a five run assault

Rowe Lasts Route

Schoolboy Rowe went the distance for the Tigers and allowed but five hits

The Indians encamped at St Louis today for their first series of the season with the St Louis Browns hoping to work Lake Erie's chill out of their fingers and Detroit's 12-to 2 brand off the seat of their pants

Willis Hudlin oldest fribesman in point of service had the call for mound duty against southpaw Howard Mills Hudlin had been slated for Saturday's chore which was called off by cold weather

The thermometer hovered around 40 in the lakefront horseshoe and held the crowd to 12 000 Feller couldn't get loosened up and he was hit his hardest since the days seasons back The Tigers teed off on him for six hits and six runs in three innings.

In the third frame Barney McCosky, Detroit centerfielder drove a ball back at Bob so fast one could hardly see it It hit with a smack and a groan arose from the stands

Umpires and players ran to the box Feller rubbed off his glove and wiggled his fingers and felt his jaw He explained he just got his mit up in time to come between the ball and his face He finished the inning

Schoolboy Rowe slow balled the Indians almost helpless Hal Trosky got the first home run of the season however in the seventh Rowe gave up only four other hits

White Sox Win

The White Sox victims of the Feller fireball last Tuesday finally recovered enough to stage a batting spree for a 9 0 2 victory over the St Louis Browns

While Red Lyons their ageless veteran was holding the Browns to seven hits the Sox socked Slick Coffman around unmercifully getting all their blows off him After putting the game away safely in the sixth with a three run outburst the Chicagoans were held hitless the rest of the way by Johnny Niggeling

In the only other game getting past the weather the St Louis Cards greeted their former hurler Dizzy Dean warmly—the perennial pop off was blasted off the mound in the fifth as the Cards won a 5-4 thriller from the Cubs

The Redbirds were helpless in the first three frames the great one's nothing ball offering nothing more substantial than a shadow to swing at But the fifth started with four successive singles Charley Root taking over in time to see the winning runs come in

2 NEW PITCHING STARS APPEAR IN ASSOCIATION

By The Associated Press

Kansas City and Minneapolis the one two teams in last season's American Association title scramble already have made it clear they don't intend to rest on their laurels

Both teams uncovered sparkling hurlers new to the league yesterday each rookie winning his game in brilliant fashion

Milt Haefner 27 year old pitcher who won 24 and lost nine for Deland Fla last year yielded only four hits in 11 innings Harry Smythe took over at the point and pitched hitless ball for five more frames before Minneapolis could squeeze out a 3 to 0 triumph over Indianapolis in 10 innings

Kansas City's newest rookie prize is Charles Wensloff 23 year old right hander who won 26 and lost four for Joplin in the Western Association in 1939 Wensloff cut Columbus down with two hits yesterday, including a home run by Pitcher Frank Melton The final score was 9 to 4

Toledo also introduced a promising youngster in Fes Wirkhaln 24 who finished the season with the Mudhens last season after winning 15 and losing nine for Fremont in the Ohio State league Wirkhaln scattered seven hits to Milwaukee as Toledo won 3 to 2

St Paul rode to a 6 to 1 victory over Louisville on the return Art Herring's six hit pitching

Holland Anticipates a Crisis

THE prime minister's blunt dignified declaration of neutrality by Premier Jonkheer D. G. Greer of the Netherlands government apparently is in anticipation of an imminent crisis.

The premier affirms his government's position clearly. It is neutral in fact as well as name and will reject protection by both sides. A glance at the map shows why.

Holland is the buffer state between Germany and Great Britain but was not created for that purpose unlike some buffer states. It is in the power politics squeeze due to Germany's concentration on England in the World war. Belgium was in the same position because Germany's primary objective then was France. In this war Belgium is relatively safe for the time being because Germany's apparent strategy is to immobilize France while getting at Britain. For this same reason the British may be assumed to have potentially as great an incentive to violate Holland's neutrality as Germany. But it is Germany which Holland plainly expects to make the first move.

Whatever happens the record is straight. The Netherlands genuinely wants to remain neutral. The aggressor who violates its neutrality will lack even the thin excuses used by Germany in occupying Denmark and Norway which failed to anticipate a crisis in time to get their positions straightened out for the record.

It Happens Nowhere Else

THE Children's Crusade for Children is going to be held for the duration or April. This is the money raising campaign initiated by Dorothy Canfield Fisher to help children without a country.

Roughly the idea is for children to give as many pennies as they are years old or any amount at all to go into a fund for refugee children. Such giving is a distinctive American custom.

International charity is a virtual monopoly controlled by Americans. Often with no purpose under the sun except to give the other fellow a better break they have sent money to all parts of the world.

It isn't wealthy Americans who do this. Furthermore they only help according to their ability. The real giving is done by what Calvin Coolidge called the ordinary run of people. It happens nowhere else.

Abuse of Civil Liberties

SEIZURE of Norway it has been made plain was only incidentally a military triumph. Chiefly it was a triumph for infiltration the technique of weakening the intended victim of aggression from within.

Norway with strong respect for civil liberties was strangled by its own liberality. It was weakened by its own idealism. In an environment of violence the Norwegians made the mistake of believing they would be safe because they intended no harm.

Abuse of civil liberties by persons who demonstrably do not believe in them according to their own professions of faith in totalitarian systems is a cynical insult to free men. It is as much as to say the free nations are as decadent as the dictators say they are.

There is no compulsion to protect the civil liberties of persons whose first act if they had power would be to terminate civil liberties. Fortunately there no longer can be any legitimate doubt of the kind of government favored by the reds browns and blacks who try to peddle their authoritarianism abroad.

No More Suspense

THE precocious prescience of some of the copy writers for the More Abundant Life advertising campaign is breath taking. These gents can hold their breath and float away in common ordinary air they all have pink wings.

Jay Franklin is this department's favorite—and welcome to the plug. It is Franklin who has just announced that for all practical purposes the election is over. Mr. Roosevelt has been reelected pending confirmation by voters whose minds have been made up for them by the inevitability of a third term.

Peering into the same teacup the best known of the New Deal's typewriting jeeps finds that our military experts believe America will enter the war as a belligerent by April 1941. That disposes of the only other source of suspense open at the moment. If a fellow knew who was going to play the Yankees in the world series he could vegetate for the next year and never miss a trick.

News Behind the News

Survey Shows Military Ability of Neutrals in Europe To Resist Invasion

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON April 22—Military analysts of each threatening European neutral's ability to withstand dictatorial aggression has been completed by a competent official authority here. It may differ best evidence as to where the dictators will jump next. Briefly, the analysis is related as follows:

Holland—A German army might get to the coast but Belgium would allow the French forces through to flank the Germans. The Belgians are bound to aid the Dutch. In view of this flanking threat the Germans probably could not hold the coast line. Germans and Allies would be fairly evenly matched in Holland with the odds on the latter's side. Holland's army (650,000) and less than 1,000 men in her air corps.

Sweden—Could not possibly hold out any length of time without help against a roughly organized air invasion (625,000 available troops, 3,000 air men). If the fleet can maintain their position in Norway they may then pinch off Sweden without much military difficulty. Substantial British entrenchment in Norway will strengthen Sweden to whatever extent it develops.

Hungary—Can be conquered by the Nazis anytime with not firing a shot. Nazi infiltration has so weakened Hungarian defenses as to make Hungary as ripe and easy for plucking as Austria. Army numbers 700,000 with 4,500 in the air corps.

Switzerland—Would be hard for the Nazis to get through as the French are alert and would move in to meet them before they proceeded very far.

Belgium—Is in the same situation. The French could move in faster than the Germans. Army 814,000, air men 7,500.

Rumania—Could put up a real fight and probably hold off the Germans until the Allied forces under General Weygand arrived from the near east, especially if Turkey cooperated. The Rumanians have an army of 1,000,000 and 800,000 reserves with more than 13,000 fighting flyers. A Hitler invasion of Rumania is not inviting for the additional reason that fighting there would mean destruction of the oil and wheat resources he desires.

Yugoslavia—Has as large an army as Rumania but is very weak internally because of the friction between Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes. Mussolini might arrange to take it without serious difficulty.

Greece—Could not stop any major power. 595,000 troops, 6,200 in air corps.

Turkey—Has only about 710,000 men ready and 3,500 air fighters, but is strategically situated so that she could hold her own against either Russia or Italy.

Walter Logan Bill

Closest inside senate checking shows a good majority about 60 votes for the Walter-Logan anti-bureaucracy bill yet it may not pass. New deal senators are becoming active to prevent a vote and the real struggle is taking place backstage on this point.

The impressive majority of 282 to 97 in the house revealed widespread personal anger of legislators with executive bureaus of the government.

Several members later said the best speech of this congress was the final few words delivered by Representative Hatton Sumners of Texas. Mr. Sumners lamented the creation of government bureaus by congress the award to them of executive, judicial and legislative power over citizens, the fact that the President could not even know who all these little bureaucrats are and that when congress adjourns these officials function unrestrained with all the powers of kings.

Practically all friends of the White House are exceptionally caustic in conversation about Mr. Dewey. The President himself is represented by more than one of his associates as really inclined to run for a third term in case Dewey gets the Republican nomination. The Dewey speeches concerning the integrity of the New Dealers have apparently aroused them far more than his earlier attacks.

On The Record

Turkey Found To Be Anxious To Avoid War, People Nurse No Hatreds.

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

ANKARA—In the few days I have been in Turkey I have had long conversations with ministers other government functionaries and with leading Turkish journalists. I have also talked with foreign diplomatists and journalists. The sum of various views presented is approximately as follows:

Turkey signed a treaty with Great Britain last October in the hope that it would help avert war. At the time Turkey believed that a sufficiently strong peace front would discourage Germany from moving any further than it had already done. The Turkish government had previously discussed the British treaty with Russia and had been advised by Russia to go ahead and sign.

Dorothy Thompson

The Turks are not embittered against Russia because they know that while Russia was advising them to sign with Britain she was negotiating with the Nazis. They feel especially disillusioned because prior to this relations between Turkey and Russia had been model.

The Turks admit frankly that they owe Russia a great deal both for the immediate recognition of their independence and for the political and economic aid which Russia gave when they sorely needed it.

In so far as they excuse Russia's conduct they do so on two grounds: first her extreme internal weakness which they think makes it impossible for Russia to become involved in a major war and secondly the distrust which Russia has of the Western nations the fear that she would have to pull Western chestnuts out of the fire and her feeling that the British were trying to engineer conflict between Germany and Russia rather than build a real peace front.

Critical of Britain

The Turks do not believe in these but some of them do think that the British treated Russia with great lack of tact and were afraid of the Communist boys. Outside of official circles which are of course very discreet there is a good deal of criticism of British policy in the last year.

The Turks also think the Scandinavian neutrals made an enormous mistake in believing that isolated they could protect their neutrality in this war. They consider the Scandinavian countries outstanding examples of this lack of a realistic neutrality policy.

Turkey has had the longest stretch of peace in more than a hundred years. Then and this era of peace has corresponded to a period of tremendous reconstruction. She suffered war after war under the Ottoman Empire lost new empire in the World war—in which she suffered prodigious losses — and afterward in the struggle for independence was engaged in war with one or another of the Balkan countries until 1924. The idea that this peace with its work of reconstruction in every field should be interrupted by another war is profoundly discouraging.

But Turkey argues thus: This is essentially a war between nations satisfied with the status quo and nations that want to change the status quo by force. Nobody believes that there is such a thing as a permanent status quo but the Turks think that neither Britain nor France was strong enough nor by nature belligerent enough to want to oppose even radical changes provided such changes occurred through negotiation and evolution.

In the Turkish concept the term status quo nations is by no means synonymous with have nations. They point out that some of the most peaceful nations and those most anxious to maintain the status quo are poor in natural resources.

Little Anti German Feeling

There is amazingly little anti German feeling in Turkey. On the surface there actually is less than in Italy. The Turkish people like the Germans and greatly admire them. They admire their organization their hygiene science technology and energy. They would like to work with the Germans and believe that Germany could do a great deal for the development of Turkey to the advantage of both countries. Indeed Germany has already done much. Practically all the machinery in Turkey is of German origin. Before the war Turkey had invited many German professors to her universities—the new universities which are modern Turkey's pride.

Also the ideology of Mustapha Kemal had much in common with the Nazi ideology. Kemal created modern Turkey under the standard of breaking the Treaty of Sevres and uniting all Turks within Turkey even to the extent of exchanging Greek and Turkish populations.

In evaluating the situation in the Balkans as a whole the Turks take a follows always emphasizing as they are speaking only from hypothesis and logic. We don't know what anybody else is going to do they say. We only know what we shall do under certain circumstances.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Thursday April 22 1920.

Berlin's proposal whereby Germany counted on training hundreds of thousands of soldiers thus evading the military terms of the Versailles treaty was flatly rejected by the council of ambassadors in session at Paris. The treaty provided that Germany's military forces should consist only of volunteers enlisted for 12 years of which only five per cent could be replacable annually. Germany sought to avoid this provision with the counter proposal that she be permitted to discharge as many of the volunteers as she wished every six months replacing them with fresh recruits.

Directors of the Marion County Club Holding Co. and the trustees of the Marion Country Club Co. elected officers. W. T. Jones was named president of the holding company and M. C. McNeil president of the Country Club Co.

The executive board of the Harding for President Women's club elected Mrs. A. M. Hutchinson corresponding secretary. A letter was received from Mrs. S. L. Leeka secretary of Capt. Taft Gains Delegates

Methods Aren't Sensational, But His Strength Grows

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON April 20—While other presidential candidates are setting themselves up in the state primary alleys and throwing themselves a strike or a gutter ball Aspirant Robert A. Taft is quietly picking off Republican national convention delegates by a method as unsensational as a door-to-door brush salesman's.

At the Ohio senator's headquarters in the Raleigh hotel here henchmen claim he already has the promise of 300 state delegates will have twice that many before the boys get together in Philadelphia in June. Some political commentators agree on the first figure.

Sen. Taft

Big quiet mathmatically-minded Senator Taft is using a pre convention technique as old as the hills: direct contact. In the nine months or so since he let his name be bandied about for top spot on the 1940 Republican signboard he has made more than 300 speeches, has set up an organization or contact force in every one of the 48 states.

Although lacking in that remarkable memory for first names and plain faces by which President Roosevelt and General Farley repeatedly knocked the hinterland politicos for a row of votes Senator Taft has been showing himself as often as congressional duties would permit. The object is twofold: (1) To convince hoped for constituents that he's a good deal more than the unstarched stuffed shirt which opponents would make him out (2) to hammer home in plodding speeches his conservative theories of government.

His First Assistant

Second only to defense in the Taft campaign is Mrs. Taft. Martha, as the folks back in Ohio call her is daughter of a one time solicitor general of the United States and what her husband hasn't in stump speech pyrotechnics Mrs. Taft has.

Already a veteran of Ohio political battles in her husband's behalf Mrs. Taft has mapped out a pre convention itinerary that reads like Mrs. Roosevelt's for the three months. Her first four weeks of speech making to Husband Bob cover the ground from Massachusetts to West Virginia with excursions into Pennsylvania and Indiana.

Possessed with a dramatic sense which her straight talking studious husband lacks Mrs. Taft has a penchant for drawing applause from her audiences where with the same lines the senator would get none. Aiding considerably in whipping up an assembly is her sense of humor.

Back in Cleveland on the home front directing the flood of literature and playing liaison officer for the whole Taft drive is David S. Ingalls.

Ingalls flies his own airplane covers thousands of miles keeps headquarters here in a constant dither answering telephone calls between breakfast and dinner from cities a thousand miles apart. Ingalls 41 is campaign manager. A former assistant secretary of the navy for aeronautics (under President Hoover) he was known during the World war as the navy's only flying ace won the DSC and other honors before he was 20.

He Rings Doorbells

In the personal conduct of his campaign, Taft has changed his technique not a whit from his tyro days. In Cincinnati he started out as a doorbell ringing precinct worker in spite of his family name and silver spoon background. He's been ringing the bell ever since. As one commentator pointed out the electorate scoffs at him during a campaign, votes for him at election.

In his fight for the senate job he beat colorful glad handing Judge Arthur Day for the nomination and in the election bumped New Deal blessed Robert J. Bulkley off the track. Preparedness

Uncle Sam Gets Set in Every Way Except Most Important—His Manpower Goes Untrained.

By DAMON RUNYON

YOU can no imagine the squawk the world goes up in this country if all the military service of the peace was made obligatory upon every young. There would be a wild protest. Even mention of the nation drafting up and never knows what else.

I would be denounced as a violation of all our principles of freedom. Suggestion of militarization of even so comparatively a small body as the CCC has produced objection. The idea of gouging all our youth to learn some thing of the business of soldiering would undoubtedly bring about a frightful uproar.

Damon Runyon

Yet, it may be said that under the law every boy in the United States of military age is actually potentially a soldier. It makes no difference what his views or the views of his parents on the subject may be. That is his status. Every citizen knows that in the event of this nation going to war, our boys will immediately be drafted into service.

It is a compulsory proposition. Evasion brings severe penalties. Upwards of 10,000,000 young fellows in every corner of the young of this land may expect to be fingered for uncle Samuel the first crack out of the box. They will not be asked how they feel about it. They will just be nabbed, that's the law.

THUS the mothers of all healthy boys of this generation may reflect as they gaze upon the bright faces of their offspring that if the United States goes to war their sons must become soldiers. There are no two ways about it. It is the law. The same thing applies to the next generation—to every American boy now in short pants or puling in a cradle unless by some miracle war disappears from the face of the earth.

Now then it being true that every boy potentially a soldier it might seem logical to give him a little early grounding in the occupation he may be called on to follow. Say a course of a few months with pay in the army or navy according to his inclination when between the ages of 18 and 21 years. The logic is that should he later be drawn by the country for actual service he would know what it is all about.

He would not have to spend several months in a training camp a waste of time that will always be Uncle Samuel's greatest point of weakness in the matter of preparedness. However we are not going to press the logic of the proposition on the customers. Some day we might want to run for public office and our opponent then would go around saying we urged compulsory military service and that we must therefore be in cahoots with the capitalists or somebody which could be made to sound most scandalous.

OF COURSE what we have got now is compulsory military service in time of war. We had it in some form in nearly all our wars but not to the same extent as in the last war when we joined out with the Allies. They kept the enemy engaged while we spent months and months teaching our youth the rudiments of soldiering. Comparatively few of our young men then had any more than a vague idea of the racket.

The nation did not have to worry about this time wasted in education because there was small chance of the enemy coming over here and taking advantage of our leisurely preparation. If we were going to pursue the logic of giving our youth early military training we would suggest that some day we might turn into an enemy not disposed to give us time to make ready.

It is true that our first line of defense, the regular army and the navy and the national guard might hold out until the untrained were polished up. Still it would seem logical to assume that we would be in better shape if we could immediately augment the first line with millions of young men of sufficient military education to fall in at once.

FEW Americans are making any particular beef about preparedness. The most enormous expenditures for the army and navy and general defense are approved as necessary safety measures in an unsafe world. But the fact seems to be overlooked that no matter how well prepared we might be in guns and warships and other lethal gadgets we would still be pretty well behind complete preparedness in manpower.

Even if we had twice as many ships and guns as any other nation in the world we would still be several months removed from the adequate handling of the weapons in manpower if suddenly called to war. It would take that long to assemble and train an army proportionate in size to the collection of war machines. And no matter how many ships and guns you have they are not worth a nickel unless there are soldiers and sailors to man them.

Anecdotes of Ohio

By GILBERT F. DODDS

An attempt by an U. S. marshal to return John Price a fugitive slave to his owner Sept. 13 1858 precipitated a furore about Wellington and Oberlin when citizens of both towns surrounded the Wadsworth hotel in Wellington and wrested the Negro from the federal officer.

A federal grand jury indicted 13 Wellington and 24 Oberlin men on charges of interfering with a federal officer's performance of duty. A Dublin school teacher was among those jailed.

Price had escaped from Kentucky and become a resident of Oberlin where he was apprehended by the marshal who became one of the neighbors of Price lodged his captive and Wellington citizens of both towns took upon the hapless officer.

Sympathizers obtained a stipulation of agreement against the Kentuckians who sought Price. Their trial in April 1859 developed that the slave owner did not have a clear title to Price. The trial ended in July with all defendants released.

BILL CALLED THREAT TO PRIVATE LENDERS

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 22—Farm loan experts—split over a proposal designed to reduce the $7,000,000,000 debt on American farms—agreed today that it would challenge private money lenders.

Sponsors of the Jones-Wheeler farm loan bill said that private lending agencies probably would have to meet a reduced government interest rate of three per cent on farm mortgages or withdraw from the rural credit field.

Opponents declare that the measure would "widen the sphere" of government competition with private capital, and lead to "socialization" by giving the government a financial claim on more thousands of farms.

The legislation would permit the farm credit administration to take over privately-held mortgages, but only at valuations based on the "productive value" of the mortgaged land.

OHIO BRANCH OF JEWISH AID COMMITTEE MEETS

Three from Marion Attend Conference in Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. Abe Schoen and Meyer Hess of Marion were among 300 Jewish community leaders representing the Ohio region of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee in an all-day conference yesterday at Hotel Fort Hayes in Columbus.

Samuel A. Goldsmith, executive director of Jewish Charities of Chicago and a member of the board of directors of the Joint Distribution Committee, told the group that half a million Jews in Poland are being helped to survive through feeding and other relief activities conducted by the Committee in the face of tremendous difficulties.

Besides Mr. Goldsmith, other speakers were William Rosenwald of New York City, president of the National Refugee Service; M. Robert Herman, director of the field staff of the United Jewish Appeal for Refugees and Overseas Needs, and Oscar Berman of Cincinnati, regional chairman of the Joint Distribution Committee.

"The work that the Joint Distribution Committee will be able to achieve in supporting the desperate Jewish communities in Europe depends very much on the funds which the United Jewish Appeal is able to raise," Mr. Herman said. "Today either the Committee brings help or the desperate Jewish communities of Europe will not receive any."

Mr. Berman was reelected chairman of the Ohio region. Among vice chairmen-at-large elected is Simon Lazarus of Columbus.

LITTLE SAVING SEEN IN BUDGET ESTIMATE

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 22 — Influential lawmakers predicted today that congress would appropriate about $7,870,000,000 at this session, resulting in little if any savings under President Roosevelt's budget estimates.

Although the President told reporters last week that it seemed likely congress might cut about $200,000,000 off the 1941 expenditures which he proposed last January, some senators said this now appeared impossible.

As an illustration, they pointed to the likelihood that the army and navy would ask supplemental funds of $100,000,000 or more for defense needs which were not considered in the original budget. An expenditure of this nature virtually would wipe out the tentative reduction of $118,051,334 which have been made in appropriation bills considered so far.

Chairman Harrison (D-Miss.) of the senate finance committee commented:

"If we get through with this session and stay within the President's original budget estimates, congress will have done a fine job."

LEGISLATION REGULATING PICKETING RULED OUT

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 22—Legislation regulating picketing in Alabama and Shasta county, California, was held unconstitutional today by the supreme court.

The Alabama statute, enacted in 1923, was challenged by the American Federation of Labor on behalf of Byron Thornhill.

The Shasta county ordinance, passed in 1938, was attacked by the C. I. O. on behalf of John Carlson.

Justice Murphy, who delivered both opinions, said they limited freedom of discussion.

Justice McReynolds dissented.

The blow reached blizzard proportions in Maine and Vermont and some sections of New Hampshire where from five to 10 inches of snow fell. Shipping and air travel were suspended at the height of the storm.

Spread of Norway Fighting Threat to Nazis at Home

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

With the vanguards of the allied expeditionary forces to Norway already striking at the German invaders in the vital sectors of Oslo and Trondheim, the northern front which the Nazis have been so anxious to forestall is being opened up full-tilt to grow as a menace to their right wing on their own home soil.

This development may be expected to result in heavy intensification of the war in the air.

The allied navies being in control of the sea communications, Herr Hitler will have to depend mainly on his air fleet not only for supplies for his invading army but for reinforcements.

By the same token he will have to reply largely on his air-arm to fight off further allied landings and supply ships.

Outcome Is Important

Thus the battle of Norway probably is developing into an unique engagement. And the outcome will give us a fair opportunity to judge the trend of the war as a whole.

The Germans are likely to stand or fall on the prowess of their air force, since their surface navy has been rendered virtually impotent for major operations, and their great land fighting-machine is prevented—barring a miracle—from striking a decisive blow because of the strength of the Maginot line.

SECOND CROSS BURNED IN BOOK BURNING ROW

By The Associated Press

BOWLING GREEN, O., April 22—The second explasion and burning of a cross near homes of two Bradner school board members within two weeks startled this Wood county village of about 850 persons early yesterday.

The demonstration occurred in front of the home of Mrs. Gladia Wirebaugh, who joined Rev. William Wegman, board president, recently in opposing the decision of three other members to destroy certain text books described as Communistic.

Mr. Wegman, a Lutheran minister, asserted the books were used only for library reference. A similar explosion and cross burning took place near his home soon after the board vote. County peace officers said no property was damaged and that they had received no complaints.

GOLF COURSES SET TO RENEW ACTIVITY

Only Few Brave Bad Weather for Week-End Play.

Today's bright sun brought smiles to the faces of Marion's golfers, who suffered another week-end of curtailed activity because of the weather. There were few who ventured out on the soggy turfs yesterday, Bill Schimmel, Marion Country club pro, and Johnny Rife, Mar-O-Del greens superintendent, reported.

Some of the dyed-in-the-wool linksmen did manage to get some practice yesterday, but most of it was confined to ironing out their swings and putting. Course officials reported workmen were back on the greens and fairways today and, barring additional rain, the ground will be dry enough for first rate golf tomorrow.

The "ringer" tourney, set to begin at Mar-O-Del yesterday, was postponed. Members who wish to participate will be enrolled this week, Greenskeeper Rife reported. The tourney will continue until June.

"Pinocchio," At Palace, Scores Hit with Reviewer

Walt Disney's second full-length cartoon feature, "Pinocchio," Saturday and Sunday won the plaudits of week-end audiences at the Palace theatre where it is being shown through tomorrow.

Filmed in technicolor, "Pinocchio" has a group of characters just as lovable as those in Disney's first feature, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," and in addition numerous action scenes have been played up to hold the interest of even the most restless audiences. There isn't a moment, so far as this reviewer could tell, where there's a lull or slackening of the picture's tempo.

Headlining the "cast" are Pinocchio, a little wooden marionette who comes to life, Geppetto, a woodcarver who creates Pinocchio, and Jiminy Cricket, an entertaining little fellow who is charged with overseeing Pinocchio.

For sheer entertainment, "Pinocchio" meets every requirement of both children and adults.—C. W.

"ADVERTISING MOVES MY GOODS MUCH FASTER"
Says Merchant

"Advertising Helps Turnover and Keeps Prices Down . . ."
"When I say advertising moves my goods faster, I mean the advertising done by the manufacturers of those goods. Nationally advertised products are in demand, and they're in demand because, generally, their quality is uniformly better and more reliable than products that are not so advertised. In addition, for goods of comparable quality, I think nationally advertised goods are priced as low or lower than others . . . My business depends upon turnover. My earnings, and profit if any, do not come from making a large profit margin on each item, but from selling goods fast, even if the profit margin is relatively low. If I can turn my capital over twenty times a year at a low profit rate, I am better off than if I could do it if I turned it over only ten times a year at a higher profit . . . If manufacturers did not advertise their goods as well, then I would have to advertise them myself, or employ salesmen to sell them to me, or else pay my customers, individually, to come in and buy. I'm sure I could not afford to do any of these things and stay in business. My turnover would be relatively slower. I can sell for less, and make more money by handling advertised goods."

CUT PREDICTED IN GRAIN STOCK

Slight Drop in Surplus Seen in Carryover at End of This Year.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April. 22—Despite spring wheat farmers' efforts to increase production, a slight cut in the United States' big surplus of bread grain is expected for the marketing season which begins in July.

The nation will go into the new season with the largest wheat carry-over in seven years, a result partly of last year's fair-sized harvest and the smallest export business in three years.

The July 1 carryover has been tentatively estimated at 299,000,000 bushels. In 1939 the carryover was 254,000,000 bushels which with a crop of 755,000,000 gave the nation a supply of 1,009,000,000 bushels. The coming July 1 carryover was estimated by deducting 40,000,000 bushels exports and 670,000,000 bushels consumed domestically.

If a 1940 crop of 626,000,000 bushels materializes on the basis of 426,000,000 winter wheat, according to the official April 1 forecast, and 200,000,000 spring wheat, the United States supply would total 925,000,000 bushels, or only 84,000,000 less than a year earlier. However, if domestic consumption and exports are the same in the 1940-41 season, this would leave a carryover of 215,000,000 bushels at the end of the coming season.

While the prospective 1940 winter wheat crop is by no means certain, the estimate of 200,000,000 bushels of spring wheat is even more nubulous. The only fact on which this estimate can be based is that farmers plan to seed 19,425,000 acres of spring wheat compared with 17,532,000 acres last season. Last year 15,894,000 acres were harvested at an average yield of about 12 bushels per acre. If abandonment amounts to the same percentage this season and the yield is unchanged the crop would be slightly in excess of 211,000,000 bushels.

WHEAT PRICES FALL FROM 3-YEAR HIGH

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 22. — Wheat prices were more than a cent higher at one time today, the best quotations posted here since 1937, but the market reacted sharply later and contracts representing the 1940 crop closed fractionally lower.

Nervous and rather wide price fluctuations reflected buying based on the war which was offset by selling due to favorable crop conditions over the grain belt, with rains reported in some localities while showers were forecast overnight. Principal markets received almost twice as much wheat as they did a year ago.

Wheat closed ⅜ cent lower to ⅜ higher compared with yesterday's finish, May $1.11⅝-½, July $1.09½-¾; corn unchanged to ⅜ higher, May 65⅞-66; oats ⅛-⅜ lower.

1,533 HEAD OF STOCK IN AUCTION AT BUCYRUS

BUCYRUS, O., April 22 — Bad weather condition caused lighter receipts in all departments, but the market was active throughout at the Saturday session of the Bucyrus Live Stock Commission Co. Two hundred seventeen consigners furnished 1,533 head of stock, which sold at the following quotations:

UPPER SANDUSKIAN STRUCK BY AUTO

John Plag, 65, of Upper Sandusky who suffered serious injuries when he was struck by an automobile early yesterday morning while crossing a street in Upper Sandusky, was reported to be in fair condition this morning at City hospital.

He was struck by a car driven by William Barth, 21, of east of Upper Sandusky, according to a news report.

He suffered a fractured skull, broken right leg below the knee, broken nose, several fractured ribs and severe lacerations about the face. Night Policeman Charles Schwabel and Herold Maffet who investigated the accident said it appeared he had turned to face the auto just as he was struck.

Mr. Barth reported he did not see Mr. Plag until his car struck him. The Bringman & Co. ambulance was called and moved Mr. Plag to the office of an Upper Sandusky physician where his injuries were dressed before he was brought to the hospital.

STEEL PRODUCTION AT 62 1-2 PER CENT

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, April 22—Conservative buying is holding steel production "fairly steady" at 61½ per cent of capacity, the magazine "Steel" said today.

Gains in the Pittsburgh, Chicago and Youngstown districts were offset by declines in the Philadelphia, Buffalo, Cleveland and Wheeling districts, the publication said. Last week production was 62 per cent of capacity. A year ago the industry was operating at 59 per cent of capacity.

"Steel" reported that the automobile industry was the principal factor in determining the steel industry's operations.

"Automobile production is expected by industry observers to be maintained at a high level for the next few months," the publication said. "Some observers believe that the industry will produce 4,000,000 cars in the second quarter of 1940, which would be 1,000,000 more than in the second quarter of 1939."

Cow from Farm Near Harpster Chosen for Exhibit at New York World's Fair

One of 24 Jersey cows which will be on display at the New York world's fair this year is "Observer LaSenate Jewel," owned by Paul W. Myers of a half-mile south of Harpster. It is believed to be the only Ohio cow which will have a part in the fair. The Jerseys were selected from 12 states and two Canadian provinces.

Observer was to be taken to New York this afternoon by truck to begin a several months' stay in "The Dairy World of Tomorrow," the exhibit of the Borden Milk Co., which will purchase the cow from Mr. Myers. The exact price is not known yet by Mr. Myers, but it is believed to be around $250.

The price is a small matter to Mr. Myers in comparison with the honor of having the animal selected for the exhibition. In addition to the Jerseys, there will be 24 each of four other breeds.

Throughout their stay in New York the cows will be under test. The animals will be used to show the ideal production of milk, while other parts of the exhibit will show other steps in bringing milk to the door in a bottle.

Observer, whose number is 1,165,029, was examined recently by representatives of the company after Mr. Myers had answered an advertisement concerning the world's fair exhibit. Observer holds a record of producing 442.8 pounds of butterfat in a year as a two-year old. If she had been mature, it is estimated she would have produced 602.1 pounds. She is now three years old.

Mr. Myers has a herd of 48 head of cattle which are sold chiefly for breeding purposes.

EXCAVATION TO START ON MT. GILEAD PLANT

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, April 22—Excavation work is to begin this week for the new $500,000 factory building of the Hydraulic Press Mfg. Co. here.

The Austin Co., Cleveland contractors, moved in equipment last week and expect to have the factory ready for occupancy in less than three months. It is located one-half mile west of the present Hydraulic plant on land recently purchased by the company between the Mt. Gilead and Edison corporation lines. The land is to be included in the Mt. Gilead corporation if the county commissioners approve a petition submitted for the purpose.

The new plant of the company will be used entirely for the production of high speed presses and the present plant will be continued in use for the manufacture of pumps, valves, and other auxiliary press equipment.

THREE DRIVERS HELD IN TRAFFIC DEATHS

By The Associated Press

Police held three drivers today in connection with traffic accidents contributing to Ohio's toll of seven deaths over the week-end.

A manslaughter charge was placed against Benedict Cholkeys, 31, in Berea, a Cleveland suburb, where Harry Zelinski, 38, was killed by a hit-skip automobile. Police reported a broken headlight led to Cholkey's arrest.

An automobile carried John Vechery's crushed body 100 feet on its bumper at Cleveland. He was 60 years old. A 24-year-old driver was held.

A car carrying a girl and three youths struck a pole at Canton, killing Emerson Rocci, 21. The driver was held in jail pending a coroner's inquest. Christina Padermos, 17, and Given Spivey, 14, were seriously injured.

Floyd H. Berry, 29, and his wife, Lorraine, 28, of Dayton, died in their automobile which struck an abutment on a curve near Miamisburg.

A head-on collision between a truck and an automobile four miles west of Wapakoneta killed Robert Jones, 19, and Eugene Hubble, 28, both of St. Mary's. Betty Kellermeyer, 19, was critically injured.

An automobile crashed into a coal truck near the Cuyahoga-Summit county line at Stratesboro, seriously injuring Harvey Dible, 45, Ohio Bell Telephone Co. engineer, and his wife, Elizabeth, 47.
